FIND GOLD MINE AT CONEY ISLAND

which for a short time proved richer than those of Nome. From them within a few hours was taken wealth estimated conservatively at from $10,000 to $15,000. The sales, however, did not uncover any store of treasure hidden there by nature, but instead caused the seas to wash up on the beach all sorts of jewelry which had been lost in the vicinity by careless wearers during the past summer.

The first find in the shape of a valuable gold watch had hardly been made before word of it spread abroad, and within a few hours thousands of persons were coming to the beach in search of treasure. That their search was productive of much wealth is shown by a partial tabulation of their findings which included a dozen gold watches, 11 rings set with either diamonds, rubies or emeralds, 21 stick pins, 22 bracelets, numerous neck chains, nearly $500 in currency, and garter buckles, sleaze links, watch fobs and other jewelry of the same sort almost without mention. In addition to these the sea yielded up pots, pans and kettles almost without number so that altogether the gales provided a store of wealth richer than any within the memory of the oldest beach frequenter.

Banner Year for Babies.

Whatever other vicissitudes it may have passed through during the past year, New York found 1912 a banner year for babies. Not only were more infants born during the year, but a smaller percentage of them died than ever before. Indeed the figures covering infant mortality constitute the most remarkable feature of the city's record health year. While the general death rate was reduced during the year from 16.13 percent to 14.11 percent, or a little more than 1 percent, the rate for infants under one year was reduced 6 percent. There were during the year 14,259 deaths of babies under one year of age from all causes in the city of New York, as compared with 15,953 deaths during 1911. At the same time the number of births in the city increased by 1981.

In this ratio, the figures show a saving of 884 babies and an actual saving of 764. An analysis of the report containing these figures indicates that the improvement in the saving of baby life was not due to luck or weather conditions, but to the campaign which has been carried on against baby diseases. As a result New York now feels entitled to claim that among large municipalities it is the most desirable destination for the stork, at least so far as a chance for life for the baby goes.

state colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts; and to appropriate money and regulate its expenditure.

These and other subjects of similar importance will be taken up and exhaustively discussed by the delegates. Resolutions, defining the policy of the chamber of commerce upon these matters will be adopted and sent to congress. Steps also will be taken to have the chamber represented at congressional committee hearings when the convention will reassemble for its sixth and last session, to hear the reports of the committee on resolutions; and that of the nominating committee.

At the conclusion of these reports a board of directors for the ensuing year will be elected by the convention.

Taft to Attend Banquet

The first annual banquet of the chamber of commerce of the United States will be held in the mammoth ball room of the New Willard hotel at eight o'clock Thursday night. Every delegate is expected to be present. President Taft will be the principal speaker, but many other men of importance in the business affairs of the nation will be called upon. It is planned to make this banquet one of the most brilliant affairs of its character ever held in Washington.

Harry A. Wheeler, of Chicago, is president of the chamber of commerce of the United States and Joseph N. Teal, of Oregon; S. D. Jones, of Georgia; A. B. Farquhar, of Pennsylvania; and H. E. Miles, of Wisconsin, are the four vice presidents who represent different sections of the country.

The chamber maintains offices in Washington and Chicago. Its main office being in Washington. A nephew of Dr. Charles Eliot, president-emeritus of Harvard college, is general secretary of the chamber and is in charge of the Washington office. G. Grosvenor Dawe, who, as managing director of the Southern Commercial congress, was largely responsible for the business rejuvenation of the southern states, is editor in chief of The Nation's Business, an organ published by the chamber. There are 25 directors of the organization, each from a different state. John Joy Edson, a Washington banker, is treasurer.

LOCAL MERCHANTS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF PARCELS POST IN DELIVERING PACKAGES

New Postoffice Department Furnishes Efficient Package Delivery in City and Suburbs at a Low Cost; the Express Companies Begin to Change Their Deliveries to Meet the New Competition.

As a parcels postman your Uncle Sammie is a success. The proof is at the local postoffice where a long line of people waiting to mail or receive parcel post packages may be seen any fair day.

Nationally the government package delivery system has been an assured success from the opening of the wicket on January 1. Locally the success is no less pronounced, for in the El Paso office hundreds of parcels are handled both outgoing and incoming each week. A back view of the parcels post window at the postoffice will prove this. At the men who are on duty there are surrounded by packages, bundles and boxes consigned for delivery by the government post. On the rear stoop of the parcels post system, Big packages and little, long boxes, dress boxes, dinner buckets and eggs in cases are arranged for delivery in the automobile, which is being used by the postoffice during the rush of business.

Local Merchants Use the Post.

It is the local end of the parcels post business which is interesting the merchants most at this time. Slow to take advantage of the parcels post system, the El Paso merchants are awakening to the fact that they have a speedy and efficient delivery service at their disposal which is cheaper and as quick as the more expensive messenger service. For six cents a two pound bundle may be sent to Washington park by a merchant and be delivered within an hour after it is mailed, it sent to the office by 10 o'clock in the morning.

This is an application of the local rate of five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound. For 10 cents a seven pound package may be mailed to any address in the city, which is in the delivery district. Downtown the service is even better for two deliveries are made daily at all but the suburban districts. Deliveries leave the postoffice at 10 o'clock in the morning and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon each day except Sunday.

There is but one delivery daily in Highland park and east of Cotton avenue, both above and below the tracks. As soon as the parcels business develops sufficiently the district east of Cotton avenue will be divided and will be served with deliveries to be arranged later.

The express company refuses to admit that the change has been ordered because of the parcels post, but at the suggestion of one of the high officers.

SOME FACTS ABOUT SIGNS

There are more than a hundred first class electric signs in operation in this city.

We say "in operation" because they do operate in bringing trade. Does this fact mean anything to you?

It seems to us it proves beyond question that the Electric Sign is an advertising factor of tremendous value.

Some business houses have declared that their trade increased 25 percent within one week after hanging out an Electric Sign.

There are always good results from Electric Signs more than justifying the expense.

Our sign propositions are based upon terms so liberal that you can easily take advantage of them.

Why not get the details from us? They are yours for the asking.
